STORY HIGHLIGHT

Supreeta Ajaya Nayak, a 19-year-old orphan has faced numerous hardships in life. Married at the tender age of 13, she now resides with her In-Laws, Aunts, Husband, and two children in Khanapur Taluk.

Before the program implementation, Supreeta's husband, a driver, suffered a debilitating accident, leaving him with a non-functional right shoulder. Her father-in-law worked as a labourer, and they lived in a house at Indira Habitat, grappling with health issues. Supreeta endured menstrual cramps and anaemia, facing a lack of rights at home. Her husband's health issues and a devastating fire that consumed their home left her with nothing, forcing her to borrow to feed her family.

To break her free from impoverishment, the STdH team coordinators helped Supreeta start goat farming. Despite initial setbacks when two baby goats died from diarrhoea, she persevered. Today, her goats are pregnant, and the venture has helped her pay off debts. Enrolled in the Self-Help Group, she relishes her newfound independence and acknowledges the program's role in transforming her life.

Before the intervention, Supreeta and her family struggled to afford even one proper meal a day. However, her determination and the support from the program enabled her to rise above adversity. Now, she expresses gratitude to STdH as it has reunified her family and empowered her to build a better future.
